Authorities coordinate efforts to fight and eradicate cholera

AMMAN, July 7 (Petra) - The number of cholera cases has now risen to 27 but only three infected persons succumbed to the epidemic, Health Minister Zuheir Malhas announced here today.

He told a press conference that the cholera cases occurred in Amman and suburbs including Ruseifa. Al Baq'a, Al Hassein, Al Wahdat and Schneller refugee camps, the districts of Nuzira, Jofa, Al Hashemi, Al Zufur, and Khreibet Al Suq, south of Amman. The first of these cases, Dr. Malhas said, appeared at Schneller camp on July 4 followed by four cases the following day and then Il cases on July 6 but the total registered cases today were 27.

Last year Jordan was lucky not to have any outbreak of the disease but it appears that cholera is endemic in Jordan and to stem the sources citizens have to pool in efforts in cooperation with the authoriries, Dr. Malhas said.

He called on the public to be vigilant and to follow instructions in matters concerning food and drinking water as well as eleanliness and the sterilisarion of drinking water.

Any patient with the symptons of cholera, usually vomitting and diarrhoea, should be immediately rushed to the hospital for treatment and those in direct contact with the patient should undergo laboratory tests to determine whether they are infected or not, Dr. Malhas said.

Those infected so far, are mostly old people and only eight children, he added.

According to the minister the authorities are now giving special attention to the health conditions in the refugee camps and warned the public against earing icecream unless they are absolutely sure it has been manufactured by fully automated machines.

Prime Minister Mudar Badran today called ar the Al Bashir Hospital and visited cholera-infected persons and enquired after

Mr. Badran also talked to doctors and hospital officials about arrangements to deal with the situation. Later Mr. Badran visited Al Wahdat refugee camp, east of Amman, where he inspected the conditions of streets and the marketplace. At the camp he met with members of the Youth Social Centre and urged them to carry out voluntary work towards fighting the epidemic. 'We are now facing an emergency situation and unless all citizens cooperate we will not be able to control the spread of the disease," the prime minister said.

He said that the authorities are keen on supplying drinking water to various regions of the capital and constructing sewers to minimise the risk of any epidemic outbreak.

The government has instructed the municipality to give top priority and special attention to cleanliness, he added. Mr. Badran was accompanied on the tour by The Minister of Culture and Youth Ma'n Ahu Nowar, Dr. Malhas and representatives from refugee camps. Also today the members of the Higher Safety Committee loured several areas in Amman and inspected in particular restaurants, lood shops and marketplaces to make sure that everybody was following sanitary regulations. A report submitted by the committee members pointed in particular to the fact that only 65 per cent of the capital's districts are linked with the sewer system and the inhabitants in the rest of the regions often throw waste water and garbage in the streets. specially noticed in densely nor regions where the cholera epidemic first appeared, the report

King Hussein in BBC interview Americans consistent only in blind support of Israel

AMMAN, July 7 (Petra) - His the Middle East but reactions Majesty King Hussein said that it is fairly obvious that the United States has no consistent policy in except in one area that of the support of Israel, right or wrong, and on every issue.

His Majesty continued in an interview with the BBC in the programme "America, Europe and the World" by saying the differences with rhe United States basically stem from the yet unresolved tragedy of Palestine and the Palesrinian people and from the American support of Israel and its aggressive policies.

Regarding Camp David accords reached between Egypt and Isr-ael, His Majesty said: "I believe ir is a dead horse and I believe there is no hope of seeing any progress towards the establishment of a just and durable peace if the Camp David approach is chosen as the only method or way.

"The Egyptian-Israeli aspect of the problem was the least complicated of all. Israel is still in occupation of the enrire area of Palestine, plus territories belonging to other Arab states, Israel is committing aggressions against Arab states, not only the immediare vicinity in terms of the countries that are on the ceasefire line with Israel, but beyond.

"And unfortunately in the past," to support what appeared to be a breakthrough as far as the Americans were concerned, they gave so much in terms of material help, moral help, military help to Israel, for very little in return, not even tor a promise for withdrawal, or the upholding of the principles which were incorporated in the Security Council Resolution 242. And as a result, nothing has hanrened.

"The situation in the occupied territories is worse than ever. So much is heard the world over of human rights, but nothing really appears to shock this world into taking action in terms of the realities of conditions in the occupied territories, the denial of a people of their human rights in every way and respect and attempts to change facts on the ground continuously in a manner which creates obstacles, real obstacles, to the achievement of peace in the long run. 'It is a dead end, there has to be a new approach. And that is why we have welcomed all moves to bring the matter again before the world community, why we have welcomed the initiatives of our friends in Europe, even the Soviet Union's suggestion recently in the same spirir that the matter should be dealt with by all concerned in

'After all its a Palestinian problem with the PLO as the sole, legitimate representative of the people of Palestine, not only with the United States and the Soviet Union but possible Europe and others, who ever wishes to make a contribution for the establishment

the area including the Palestinians

King Hussein stressed the unique position of Jerusalem and said: "I have always held the view that Jerusalem is far too great an issue to be a political capital for Israel. Jerusalem is of great importance to the very many hundreds of millions of people, both Muslims and Christians alike. In speaking about Jerusalem, obv-

Arab Jerusalem to Arab sovereignty. In context of peace Jerusalem can then become the essence of peace. King Hussein said the so-called "Jordanian option" is a waste of time and the fact is that there is a Palestinian problem on Palestinian soil under occupation of Israel and there can be no solution to the problem without the participarion of the people of Palestine in solving the problem and making their contribution towards the establishment of peace.

On the sneaky Israeli attack on the nuclear reactor in Iraq. His Majesty said: "It appeared that before the attack upon the reactor m Baghdad, Begin was uncertain of winning the elections thus he exploited the artack to increase his popularity in Israel. But it appears to me beyond doubt that there is a sizeable majority in Israel that has aggressive tendencies and wishes its leaders to be not only arrogant but offensive and wishes a continuation of reliance on force rather than seeking the path of peace in interests of all within the area and possible the world and in the interests of future generations." "I believe that America's credibility in the area has suffered enormously and hy that I mean obviously the Arab Wnrld as such. One would have hoped that there may had been a sign of some change at some point in the.

face of realities in the face of continued aggression an even in terms of American interests in the area.

But until now sadly we see no sign lously one speaks of the return of of that," His Majesty concluded.

The court, acting on a complaint brought by retail grocers in Kiel, West Germany, said the operators of so-called "butter ships," were violating European Economic Community (EEC) tax laws.

The butter ships, now operating off the Netherlands and West Germany sell burter, cheese, meat, wine and other farm products at cutrate prices. These are substantially lower than EEC prices boosted by agriculture subsidies designed to help the 10nation Community's 8.5 millioo farmers.

The court said the EEC violated g ir irs own laws when it passed a regulation in 1977 permitting buyers on such ships to purchase a kilogramme each of butter, cheese and meat, two litres of wine and two kilogrammes of other agriculture products.

An EEC Commission report estimated that the lower sales caused about 7 million European eurrency units ($7.2 million) in losses to the EEC budget a year.

"Before 1978 it is estimated that every year some 14,000 tons of butter, 4,000 tons of cheese and 2,500 tons of beef were sold on these ships and brought into the Community without payment of import levies," the report said. "Since 1978 rhe quantities involved have fallen slightly but are still substantial, about 6,000 tons of butter, 1,600 tons of cheese and 1,000 tons of beef." Today's ruling is not binding oo operators of the "butter ships," but it provides a basis for decisions by West German courts. Under EEC procedures, the Kiel grocers can now go to court in West Germany and get an order banning the shipboard sales.

Grocers in the Netherlands who object to the offshore competition can also ask Dutch courts to apply the EEC court ruling.

The butter ships, in addition to providing low cost food, have spawned something of a tourist trade, with bus operators providing transportation from towns in north Germany to Kiel.

EEC officials have estimated that a butter-ship customer buying the previously allowed limit could save about $23 by buying on the ship instead of in an onshore supermarket required to charge the erton but declined to go into detfull prices and taxes.

U.S.-Egyptian talks on Sinai force fail to resolve last-minute hitch CAtRO, July 7 (Agencies) - A meeting today between Egyptian and U.S. officials failed to resolve a last-minute hitch in negotiations on the formation of a multinational force to police Sinai after Israel withdraws next April, Egyptian Foreign Ministry sources said.

Israel has reservations about a provision in the proposed agreement dealing with the possible future replacement of the force by a United Nations force, they said. Egyptian Foreign Minister Kamal Hassan Ali and the U.S. ambassador in Cairo, Mr. Alfred Atherton, discussed the issue today. But the sources said they made no headway. Mr. Ali said the question of the force was discussed during his hour-long meeting with Mr. Atlı-

U.S. chiet negotiator Michael Sterner told a press conference last month that Egypt and Israel had reached full agreement on the formation of the force.

Last week, Australian Prime Minister Malcom Fraser visited the United States and it was reported that his discussions with President Ronald Reagan on the U.S. request for the inclusion of Australian soldiers in the peacekeeping force failed to produce any agreement. Diplomatic sourees observed that Mr. Fraser's hesitatinn for participating in the force has stemmed from the fear of antagonising Arab states who do not recognise the U.S.sponsored Camp David accords reached between Egypt and Israel, under which the policing by the peace-keeping force has been mandated.

Falangist leader says he's willing to guarantee 'no Israeli relations'

BEIRUT, July 7 (Agencies) - The leader of Lebanon's Falange Party today expressed his willingness to guaraotee that his party had "no relations" with Israel.

Syria has demanded the Falangists publicly renounce ties with the Zionist State and the issue has been a major stumbling block in Arab-mediated efforts to resolve the seven-year-old political crisis in Lebanon.

"We stress our readiness to give any guarantee and at the same time assure that there are no relations between ourselves and Israel," the 75year-old Falange Party founder Pierre Gemayel told reporters after a meeting with Lebanese President Elias Sarkis.

Israeli officials had replied in a parliament debate last month that the Israeli government had armed and trained unnamed right-wing groups in Lebanon. Reports from Tel Aviv said Israeli Prime Minister Menachem Begin had made agreements with the groups' leaders to provide air protection against Syrian warplanes.

Mr. Gemayel has previously admitted that the Falange-led coalition of right-wing militias in Lebanon had bought weapons from Israel but consistently denied relations were broader than arms

"If some consider the buying of arms is cooperation, then we are in a position to rectify this view and settle the issue, Mr. Gemayel said, addmg that the militia forces would be disarmed only if other factions in Lebanon were forced to give up their weapons as well, the state-run Lebanon Radio

"We, the Lebanese resistance, are determined ro put an end to this seven-year-old tragedy. We have given 5,000 martyrs and are prepared to give anything else to end this crisis." Mr. Bashir Gemayel told reporters after the meeting at the presidential palace in Baabda. He added that he had submitted a letter to Mr. Sarkis regarding the "question of cooperation" but he did not elaborate. The conrents of the letter were not disclosed and Mr. Gemayel told reporters it was up to the president to

Crafts: an industry threatened by change

The handicrafts industry in Jordan and other Arab countries faces extinction due to "social, financial, personal and administrative forces," according to this personal assessment, the last in a Jordan Times series on handicrafts in Jordan.

By Mohammad Ayish Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN - When I was at school in the United States two years ago, a Canadian friend of mine who had been to the Middle East told me of the "great things" he had the opportunity to see, there, particularly the traditional crafts, which had no counterparts in the United States and Canada.

My Canadian friend had the chance to buy his beloved crafts and enjoy keeping them in his own collection. But he probably never got the chance to look into their present situation and closely observe the process of decay they are undergoing.

Although my argument applies to Middle Eastern countries in general, it will be confined to crafts in Jordan in light of my recent research.

Handicrafts in Jordan are gravely threatened by certain forces social, financial, personal and administrative -- that could bring about their demise, perhaps for-

"Jordanian women turn down their noses at the spinning business." This statement and many others by craftsmen I have met seem to reflect a sense, on the part of many Jordanians, that crafts are below them. This could be due either to their unprofitablity as a business, or to a feeling that sewing a dress or carving a stone is socially demeaning.

Some craft people have man-

A Jordan Times in-depth series

aged to pursue their vocations while maintaining a good level of income and a considerable amount of social respect. A ceramics maker, for instance, told me how he runs a big factory in Hehron which yields mass production for thousands of costumers all over the area. "I started the thing as a limited handicraft business, but 1 no longer use my hands since machines are the major element in the production," he told me.

That "enterpreneurial" way of maintaining crafts, however, is considered a problem in itself. It is widely argued that machine-made ceramics or dresses are no longer ecrafts, but are mass-produced items similar to other manufactured merchandise.

In other words, the tirm of some craftsmen towards mass production is a hindrance to the progress of handicrafts in Jurdan, and does not represent any advance. That fact was apparently realised by some ceramics costumers, who would complain of scratches in the plates they bought. The costumers argued that had the plates heen totally hand-made, they would have been perteedy produced.

The feeling that "Europeans appreciate our handleralts more than the Arahs do" also expresses indignity on the part of craftsmen in response to the attitudes of local society towards this traditional part of its culture.

Humiliation

An even more dramatic example of the humiliation craftsmen feel was cited by a stone carver who produced beautiful work, but was hombarded by barrages of criticism from his friends, "They try to convince me that all I do is nonsense, but I like it and so do my wife and family," he said.

In other words, Jordanian craftsmen need an overall social rehabilitation to enable them to preserve their traditional status as guardians of local culture and tra-

But who will undertake that rehabilitation, and how, is n complicated question that has social. financial and personal rantifications in society.

At present, handicrafts in Jordan are promoted in part by the Jordan Crafts Development Centre Company, a small body which buys crafts from Jordanian era-Itsmen on a limited basis -- and at low prices, according to most of the craftsmen who had dealt with the centre. The centre was established some years ago to promote and encourage Jordanian crafts, but was turned into a prolit-taking organisation -- while supposedly retaining its original purpose.

Unfortunately, most of the craftsmen I met said that they either had never heard of the centre, or that their relationship with it was not one of regular transactions.

Another party concerned with promoting crafts in Jordan is the Industrial Development Bank (IBD), which has a special crafts fund to give loans to craftsmen to improve their business. According to a study on the attitudes at crafishien towards borrowing from the IDB, most respondents had a negative attitude towards the bank, for several reasons, But even less encouraging is the fact that some of the craftsmen do not know anything about the IDB crafts lund which has been functioning for more than live years.

This continunication gap hetween the IDB and Jordanian erafismen sheds light on some of their problems -- foremost antong which are linancial ones. Most of the people I met complained of inconvenient working places, a need for machines to do part of the work and for money to buy raw materials. Another problem contronting eraftsmen is the absence of a cooperative that would defend their rights, adopt their goals and promote their merebanilise Sources at the Jordan Crafts Conneil said there had once been a cooperative for craftsmen, but it was dissolved two years after it was formed, "due to the entitsmen's belief that a cometition was taking place between the Jordan Crafts Centre and their cooperative."

Reviving heritage

But in the midst of all this gloom, there is some hope that crafts in Jordan may be maintained as a sign of the heritage. That hope is stirred by the establishment of the Turath Centre. which has undertaken the responsibility of teviving the heritage represented by erafts,

The Turath Centre is still wet behind the ears; but it has set itself a very amhittous programme that would seem to strain its limited resources. The centre is starting from setateli, having prepared no studies or surveys on crafts in Jordan, nor does its have the human capabilities to achieve its ends. Yet officials at the centre seem certain that their programme will be put into effect gradually. They say that they will keep the centre committed to its principal goals, and not stumble in the pitfall of profit, as the Jordan Crafts Development Centre did.

IBS breaks new ground in education

Special to the Jordan Times

AMMAN — A pioneering International Baccalaureate School (IBS) was set up here this year by the Hashemite Society of Education. The seltool, which starts classes in September, will solve the problems that many Jordanian and non-Infomian students face when they want to continue their studies in universities and colleges all over the world.

At the same time its programntes are adaptable to both the Jordanian and non-Jordanian cultural context, since it has an international identity that interacts with and enriches the educational system in the country.

The IBS programme will be equivalent to that of a regular seeondary school and students will be prepared to sit for the national tawjihi exam ofter they finish the required courses of study. The sellahus also prepares foreigners for the International Baccalaureate diploma.

Until its permanent building is completed in two years the school will occupy a temporary building in Jahal Luweibdelt, which will serve as both teaching space and administrative quarters.

1BS Principal Zalri Rihani told the Jordan Times "At this stage, our yearly admissions of students. will range from 150 to 200, in age groups six to 17.1

The students will be divided into 10 grades, with a maximum of 20 students in each. Keeping ctasses small is a basic aim of the senool, "because we want to ensure abetter and healthfer learning process," Mr. Rihani said.

When classes start, students will face a totally different situation from that in other schools in Jordan. Each is required to take six subjects, of which the sixth is optional, to be chosen according to the student's own interests, But while the students have a say in their own education, they have to conform to a pattern that ensures a properly halanced education, Mr. Ribani said Although the general programme is restricted to certain subjects such as languages, mathematics, sociological studies and experimental sciences, it will also be designed to permit the students to gain experience in independent Hünking.

Further in-depth education will also take place at the higher levels, where the students will enjoy leaming for the sake of learning, Mr. Riltani remarked.

Liberal

sense that the students will have a chance to study what they like. They can choose art, music or design. But the syllabus also requires rigorous effort from the students, not only in regular classwork but also in their inderendent work.

'Students are required to handle experiments independently, which is a different system from that used in other schools, where the instructor handles the whole class," Mr. Rihani said.

Most of the school's programmes are geared to broadening the mind and developing the student's abilities, rather than tiveramming knowledge into their minds. The 1BS programme also creates an international awareness, and students will learn to appreciate the culture and heritage of other nationalities.

In Jordan, however, a specially designed syllabus has been set up to meet the country's needs. Jordanian students are required to study both Arabie and English, and will also receive instruction in Islamic culture and civilisation.

"The International Baecalaureate programme usually aims at giving the student a wholesome education, whatever his nationality." Mr. Rihani said.

In addition to the six basic subteets, all the students are to study the "theory of knowledge" -- a common syllahus for students all over the world seeking the intcinational Baccalaureate, in this programme, each student is expected to investigate the different fields of knowledge and know the relationships among them.

stadents must also submit an extended essay -- un independent piece of work manifesting the student's individual ability, creativity and modes of thought. At the moment, the school is limiting its programmes due to lack of space and staff, and the relatively small number of applicants, "It seems that people are still wary of a new system of education." Mr. Rihani said. A board of trustees made up of highly qualitied and motivated individuals has been formed to run the school, and the IBS, which is a non-profit making school, is under the aggis of the International Baccalaureate Organisation (IBO). The IBO was established in 1962 by a group of internationally famous educators, and its activities, have, broadened through the years.

To strengthen individual effort,

The organisation has developed a curriculum and a system of examinations leading to the International Baccalaureate diploma, a diploma fully recognised The system will be liberal in the and accepted in many countries.

Good news, bad news

THE GOOD NEWS is that the Lebanese Falangists have indicated a willingness to break off their ties with Israel if such a move were to help bring about national reconciliation in Lebanon. The bad news is that Philip Habib is on his way back to the Middle East. Not that we are against fair third party mediators trying their hand at peace-making in the Holy Land, mind you. Far from it. We have always welcomed the injection into the Middle Eastern scene of honest people who would work hard for a genuine peace. But the United States today is not that party.

Surface theatrics will prompt the madmen of the United States Congress and their colleagues in the executive branch to make grandiose statements about how Mr. Habih's continuing efforts are responsible for the contamient of an otherwise potentially exphisive situation. The truth is much more worrying: the United States, as it has done several times since 1967, is trying to exploit the chaos and directionlessness in the Middle East to inject itself into the scene as the great peace-maker. Recent history shows us that American involvement in peacemaking has always been predicated on meeting "security" dictates for Israel that make the concept of Arab sovereignty and nationhood look like a laugh. And in the eyes of the American and Israeli leaderships, that is precisely what it is -- though it is sugarcoated with the occasional farcical palliative such as Security Council resolutions condemning Israel, or holding up for one month the delivery of more advanced American armoury to Israel. The prospect of vet another self-indulgent American peace-making fiasco is trightening, given the gross anti-Arab bias of the United States.

ARAB PRESS COMMENTARY

AL RA'l: In a spirit of courage, responsibility and full confidence in itself and in our citizens, the Jordanian government made a public announcement yesterday of the cholera cases discovered in Jordan, and said it had taken the necessary measures to combat and eradicate the disease, calling on all citizens to shoulder their share of responsibility in that respect.

The government's announcement of the cholera cases is in itself a civilised measure, which governments in other regions might not have been courageous enough to take, preferring instead to impose a complete blackout on the incidence of the disease.

It is, therefore, our duty as responsible citizens to understand the reasons for the government announcement, which does not call for panic since the medical treatment for the disease is known, available and effective.

In the first place, the announcement was made to dispel any ill-intensioned rumours, which may exaggerate the number of cholera cases. It is also a call for stepping up the national effort of keeping up the standards of public and personal cleanliness and sanitation, which are the most effective elements in fighting and eradicating cholera.

Cooperation between the public and the authorities to raise the standards of public cleanliness and sanitation is one of the basic requirements for the success of the campaign against cholera.

Doubiless, the courage shown by the government in announcing the cholera cases and the immediate measures it adopted to protect the safety of the public, as well as our people's courage, will effectively clear up our country of cholera in the soonest

AL DUSTOUR: The initiative taken by Prime Minister Mudar Badran, who chaired an emergency meeting of the Higher Public Salety Committee yesterday to take urgent measures to prevent the spread of cholera, merits appreciation.

The government has taken all the necessary measures and alerted all the competent authorities to deal with this dangerous disease, which has appeared in Jordan during the summer for the past several years.

The speed with which this disease spreads, however, makes it impossible to prevent it from reaching epidemic proportions if the public does not cooperate with the government in following instructions and directives for preserving public sanitation in cities and villages and in preventing the contamination of water, fruits and vegetables.

Jordan had been exposed to this epidemic before, but it successfully controlled it and lives were saved by a high standard of public awareness, adherence to the principles of proper public sanitation and cooperation with the authorities concerned. The disease will be controlled this time as well, if we follow instructions and if each of us plays a part in preserving the cleanliness of his or her own house and environment.

Jordan now receives arrivals from all over the world. Some of these arrivals come from countries where cholera is endemic and they are honce natural carriers of the disease. It is therefore necessary to tighten health inspection practices at all airports and border entry points into the Kingdom and to insist that all arrivals produce vaccination certificates against all epidemie diseases at all times, not only after cases of such diseases are reported.

Ramadan's technical face By Dr. Awn R

(Part 1)

EVERY YEAR, Muslims celebrute the fasting month of Ramadan during which the Kuran was recited upon Prophet Mohammad more than lourteen centuries ago. To Muslims, numbering about one thrusand million people, or roughly one quarter of today's world population, this month is a special ocrasion whose observance change their daily mutine. A lot is usually talked about regarding the religious, spiritual, and historical aspects of Ramadan, and the fullnwine comments will only deal with some technical points that are not usually advertent.

Fasting is the distinct characteristic of Ramadan, since it is one of the five main pillars of Islam. The significance of fasting carries with it the spiritual values, the discipline of the mind and the body, the remembrance of the Creator and sharing the feelings of the deprived. The celebration of Ramadan is an occasion to renew the faith and favour the good over the evil. During this month, eating and drinking are prohibited from dawn until sunset; and so is smoking, although this leads to some controversy over other fumes, pollitted air, steam or water vapour and some smells, which are likely to penetrate the body and spuil fasting. When the rules for fasting were laid out fourteen centuries ago, the Muslim population inhabited some parts of the Arabian peninsula and the fixing of the fasting period by the dawn and the sunset was satisfactory and easy to complay with. The accuracy of the timing in various places was considered secondary to the real value and mural behind fasting and praying. Today, Muslims are spread over wide areas in many parts of the world and modern science has invented the means for calculating time with split-second accuracy. Computers and primary time stundards can be used to specify lasting and praver times with precision; satellites can relay such information instantaneously to many countries. But, should we over-emphasise the tothe-minute accuracy, or should we be satisfied with the approximate time, while highlighting the ntoral significance? If we adopt the idea of 'doing our best in utilising our resources' to fix the time, then we are justified in our claborate calculations. In this case, why don't we apply the same scientific logic to fix the first day of Ramadan, which until now is being specified after confirming an eye observation of the appearance of the crescent?

There are many phenomena which can mask our witnessing of the crescent. These could pertain to the observation site. time of the day, season, weather conditions, pollution of the environment, water vapnur, gases, dust or other particles in the atmosphere, the area of the moon's surface lit by the sun and the effort we undertake to go out looking for the crescent. Despite the lact that the crescent might have actually been formed, our observance of Ramadan depends on the above-mentioned facturs. The fasting and prayer times have also to be calculated tor different regions, since they vary with the geographical location, People are then expected to follow the times accnrding to their neorest site where these have been fixed. It is therefore possible that two neighbouring villages might be fullowing two different times. This unavaidable inc. nnvenience can be minimised by selecting the unification regions according to the population density. There has been some cuses when such us situation happened because the two neighbours belonged to -- with its requisites.

U.S.-Chinese relations: escalating recklessnes

THE WORLD PUBLIC is watching with concern the intensification of dangerous trends in the development of U.S.-Chinese relations - a factor which has an increasingly negative influence on the international situation. The recent talks of U.S. Secretary of State Alexander Haig with the leaders of the People's Republic of China demonstrated that Washington and Peking coordinate their policy with the aim of sharpening tension, destabilising the international situation, increasing confrontation with the Soviet Union and the socialist community, and of waging jointly an undeclared war against Afghanistan and Kam-

A hallmark of the talks, judging by the documents released, was Peking's and Washington's hostility to the USSR, to the cause of peace all over the world. The views of the United States and China on the international situation, Mr. Haig said after the talks, have never been so close as at the present time. "We have many common and coinciding views," Chinese minister of foreign affairs Huang Hua said in unison. The Chinese side, according to Mr. Haig, highly praised the measures of the U.S. administration to build up U.S. military might and strengthen its relations with the allies in the military blocs. This delighted the zealous opponent of detente, Senator Henry Jackson, to such an extent that he said that not a single country of the world was a more staunch supporter of NATO than China.

One is in the presence of a new stage in the development of the Sino-American partnership -a stage highly dangerous for the cause of peace. This manifests itself above all in a substantial expansion of its military aspects.

The Washington administration has announced its decision to exclude China from the list of "unfriendly communist nations" and to include it into the category of "friendly developing states." Pertinent amendments will be introduced into U.S. legistation. This move will not only make it possible for China to acquire combat equipment and technology which, by virtue of special restrictions, it is prohibited to export to "unfriendly nations," but will also open an access to soft credits for China. It seems that Peking entertains hopes that this would allow it to overcome difficulties connected with an acute shortage of foreign currency...

Expressing their readiness to give Peking the means for waging modern warfare, including offensive weapons, the present Washington leaders went much further in their dangerous provocations, than the Carter Administration which they had eriticised before the elections for an excessively pro-Peking tilt.

The two countries began coordinating their "parallel actions" on the basis of "common strategic interests" during the visit of former U.S. secretary of defence Harold Brown to Peking in January 1980. At the time, Mr. Brown hinted at a possibility of sales to China of "dual purpose" equipment, that is, usable for both civilian and military purposes. When half a year later the present Chinese Defence Minister Geng Biao arrived in Washington on a reply visit, this possibility had already become reality. The U.S. government approved about 500 licences on the sale to China of dual purpose goods and technology (helicopters, transport planes, trucks and radars). ft was stressed however, that the case in point was the delivery of military equipment, not of the weapons which kill.

From now on, access has been opened for China not only to such classified high technology equipment as systems for the guidance of strategic missiles or military communication equipment, but also to all types of combat equipment -- from anti-tank missies to fighter-domoers, frowever, the State Department avoids calling things by their names, assuring that the U.S. allegedly does not export offensive weapons as, they say, according to the laws of the United States, they are not to be used for aggression. But the Pentagon's clients have more than once shown in practice that such reservations are worthless. And the most recent examples of this is the Israeli raid on Bag-

It can be said that Mr. Haig was on a mission in Peking as a general in civilian uniform. His meeting with Defence Minister Geng Biao was devoted to arms sales and exchange of intelligence. Taking part in the talks on this issue was deputy chief of the Chinese military intelligence service Zhang Zhong-qi.

It was precisely in these days that reports had leaked into the press that the U.S. and Chimese intelligence services teamed up even before the "full normalisation" of relations between the two states. An additional impulse to it was the overthrow of the anti-popular regime in fran, as a result of which the ClA lost its electronic intelligence stations near the border with the Soviet Union. Two monitoring stations with U.S. equipment, managed by Chinese personnel under the guidance of CIA instructors, were built in nor-thwest China on the basis of a secret agreement between Washington and Peking. The intelligence information about the Soviet Union coming from these stations, the New York Times writes, is jointly used by U.S. and Chinese espionage centres.

As a result of his recent trip, Mr. Haig. in his own words, reached agreement on broadening active cooperation between the military departments of the two countries. A Chinese military delegation will visit Washington in August to discuss concrete aspects of such cooperation. Those, who give modern weapons to the Chinese hegemonists, obviously assume that they will gain in return an opportunity to influence Peking's policy, to channel its expansionism primarily in the northern direction. This is wishful thinking! The danger of China's militarisation - for this is the path that has been chosen by the Reagan Administration - lies in the fact that American weapons in the hands of the Chinese will be used in the first place against relatively small neighbouring countries, among which, incidentally, there are America's allies as well. It seems that China is being pushed towards the realisation of its territorial claims in Southeast and South Asia. Even the countries which are regarded as friends of the United States, voice apprehensions over the results of Mr. Haig's visit to Peking which are alica to the interests of peace. In Japan, for example, not only the public but the official quarters as well express such sentiments. The newspaper Mainichi writes in an editorial article entitled "The dangerous character of U.S.-Chinese military cooperation" that a militarily strong China constitutes a threat to all countries of east and southwest Asia bordering on it.

. The ministry of foreign affairs of Japan expressed concern over the delivery of U.S.manufactured weapons to China.

Peking ever more actively supports Washington's insistent demands that the country, whose cities of Hiroshima and Nagasaki came under an atomic bombing, get over its nuclear allergy and embark upon the road of becoming a military power. There is every ground to expect that the parties to the U.S.-Chinese collusion will be trying to goad Japan ever more insistently to Foreign analysts note that the decision to sell offensive weapons to China blends with the dramatic toughening of the U.S. policy in Asia. The main component parts of this policy are a broadening of military aid to Pakistan for turning it into a regional policeman and, in particular, into a base for continuing the aggression against Afghanistan. It is the creation of the rapid deployment force in the Indian Ocean and other parts of the world, the knocking together in the area of Southeast Asia of a new military grouping coming out from positions hostile to Vietnam, Laos and Kampuchca. The Chinese leadership declares its support for the U.S. military presence in the Indian Ocean and the Far East and welcomes the expansion of the network of U.S. military bases and strongpoints in those regions.

Neither the U.S. nor China conceal that their aim is to drive a wedge between the countries of Indochina and their neighbours -- the states of Southeast Asia, to create around Vietnam something like a sanitary cordon, to try again to put the Vietnamese people on its knees. U.S. assistant secretary of state for East Asian and Pacific affairs John Holdridge, who accompanied Mr. Haig during the visit to Peking, is cynically speculating now on the necessity to find jointly with other countries methods of increasing the political, economic, and, if necessary, military pressure to bear on Vietnam.

Another point at the talks in Peking was the so-called Kampuchean problem. The U.S. secretary of state said in public that, with a small difference in nuances in the approach of the U.S. and China to this issue, the sides had agreed that a "united front" must be set up in Kampuchea for struggle against Vietnam. Its backbone must be the Pol Pot gangs, which receive Chinese and U.S. weapons via Thailand's territory. All this means that the enemies of People's Kampuchea are creating a seat of military danger in the area of the Thailand-Kampuchean border, are engaged in intensive preparations for an armed conflict. A plan is hatched in the U.S.-Chinese circles to capture a part of the territory of the People's Republic of Kampuchea and create there some "liberated area" where a puppet "government" would be immediately sent.

The results of the U.S.-Chinese talks in Peking indicate that China's line favouring a military solution to the "Kampuchean question" has met Washington's approval. Apart from the United States, ASEAN and some other countries are currently being drawn into the implementation of this course. There are plans to disguise interference in the internal affairs of Kampuchea by resorting to the authority of the United Nations. For that purpose Mr. Haig and Mr. Huang discussed what "sanctions" with regard to the People's Republic of Kampuchea and Socialist Republic of Victnam could be adopted by the so-called International Conference on Kampuchea to be convened in New York next month,

The dangerous military-political schemes devised by shortsighted adventurists are fraught with a serious danger to the whole world. If Washington counts on using rabid anti-Sovietism of the current Chinese leadership for the advantage of the United States in its global anti-Soviet strategy, Peking has its own interest to pursue, namely to set the United States and the Soviet Union against cach other so as to be able to dome world after o nuclear conflict which, and Peking's plans, will annihilate America ope but, possibly, spare some dozensora of hundreds of millions of Chinese. Af China's population is double that of the

PLO urges EEC countries to spell out individual policies

BEIRUT, July 7 (R) — A Palestine Liberation Organisation (PLO) leader was quoted today as saying that European states should spell out their own Middle East policies instead of sticking to a united stand.

In an interview published in the Beirut newspaper As Safir, Mr. Farouk Qaddoumi, head of the PLO political department, said the PLO had discounted the European Common Market's (EEC)

Some EEC states were more in line with the PLO's position than others and the European initiative had prevented them from speaking out, he said.

Bani-Sadr reported hiding in Kurdistan Moderates, leftists to challenge Raja'i in election

TEHRAN, July 7 (Agencies) - A dozen leftist, moderate and fundamentalist aspirants were planning today to challenge hardline Prime Minister Mohammad Ali Raja'r in the July 24 elections to chanse a successor for deposed President Abol Hassan Buni-

Sadr, observers in Tehran said. Tehran radio reported 10 more opponents of Ayatollah Ruhollah Khomeini's Islamic revolution were executed last night and at daybreak today on charges of staging violent riots against the regime to protest Dr. Bani-Sadr's ouster.

A Kurdish-language radio statiun broadcasting from the town of Baneh, monitored in Tehran, confirmed the fugitive ex-president was hiding in Kurdistan. Sources have said he was with autonomyseeking Kurdish tribesmen of the northwestern province near the Turkish border.

The new executions announced today brought to about 140 the total numbers of radical upponents officially reported hanged or shot by firing squads since Dr. Bani-Sadr's dismissal more than two weeks ago.

Tehran radio said four 'counter-revolutionaries' were executed in the town of Ghaemshahr, town in the Caspian Sea town of Nowshahr, two in Behshahr, also on the Caspian Sea, and one in the southern city of Shiraz. One other leftist was sentenced to death in Caspian Sea town of Babol but the sentence was commuted to life imprisonment because he repented, the radio added.

Authorities accused "criminal groups' -- most of them leftists of planting a bomb at Tehran's Hamzeh Mosque that was set to go off when lights for the dawn prayers were to be turned on. "But thanks to the alertness of the people, the bomb was discovered and defused by explosive experts," the broadcast said. "A note was found near the location of the bomb, saying: The first was a loss, the second a tragedy."

The note was not explained by the state-run radio. But the "loss" was an apparent reference to the unsuccessful attempt to assassinate Tehran's Friday Imam and Chief IRP Parliament Spo- lim fundamentalist Mr. Habkesman Ali Khamenei by a booby-trapped tape recorder in a Tehran mosque on June 27. He is still recuperating n a Tehran hos-

LONDON, July 7 (A.P.) - The Tehran bureau of Renters Ltd. has been ordered closed indefinitely and its three correspondents told to leave Iran within 48 hours, a spokesman for the news agency said today. A Teltran radio broadcast announcing the expulsion accused Renters of "biased and intruc" reporting from the Iranian cupital.

A Renters official, who asked not to be identified, said the decision to close the agency's bureau appeared to be part of a general government review of foreign

The official said the Iranian ministry of Islamic guidance had informed the three correspondents that a survey of Reuters news dispatches conducted by the official Pars news agency had found the reporting slanted.

EEC parliament cool on budget proposals

STRASBOURG. France. July 7 (R) - The European Parliament gave a cool reception today to proposals by the EEC commission for reforming the Common Market budget.

"It is nothing more than a rough sketching out," Pieter Dankert of the Netherlands said on behalf of the Socialist Group, the most powerful in the 434-

His criticism was echoed by the leaders of the Parliament's other main political groups, who said the proposals were strong on general ideas but weak on the kind of detail that could lead to rapid changes in the $25 billion budget.

Presenting the proposals, EEC Commission President Gaston Thorn said the current ceiling on member states' hudget contributions would have to be removed in order to develop new community policies and rectily imbalances in the budget.

But Mr. Dankert said it was fanciful to suppose that the ceiling, set at one per cent of member states' value added tax (VAT) funds, could be raised in the near future. He said the immediate need was for new orientations with available resources.

"It is within the budget that we must find ways to adjust policies." Mr. Dankert said, adding that until farm spending had been reduced certain member states would not agree to make more ands ava-

West Germany, the largest net contributor to the EEC budget, has made it clear that, at a time of national budgetary restraint, it could not accept a rise in the present ceiling until community spending policies have been revised.

Mr. Dankert has led a consistent campaign by the Parliament over the past two years for a reduction in CEC farm spending, which accounts for some 70 per cent of the budget, and the development of community industrial and energy policies.

This was supported in the suggestions for reform presented by the commission last month in response to a mandate from EEC ore gn m nisters. But the proposals, which also advocated a special mechanism to compensate Britain for its high net contribution, did not specify how this might be ach-

EEC leaders are due to review the commission proposals at a summit meeting in London in November, and Mr. Dankert said significant progress' was necessary then. The assembly will vote to accept or reject the 1982 EEC budget in December.

WASHINGTON, July 7 (A.P.) — Wholesale lood prices in the United States, unchanged for most of the spring, began rising in June. pushing the nation's inflation ahead at an annual rate of 6.9 per cent at the wholesale level, the government reported today.

British Steel loses £668m

LONDON, July 7 (A.P.) - State owned British Steel Corp. said today it lost a record £668 million ($1.28 billinn) last year. The company's annual report blamed the loss on a three-month strike by steel workers, a sharp drop in British demand for steel products and a deterioration in European steel prices.

The 1980 figure compares with the £545 million ($1.04 billion) the company lost in 1979 and pushes the corporation's deficit over a four-year period to nearly £2 billion ($3.82 billion).

Despite the gloomy statistics, British Steel Chairman Ian Mac-Gregor predicted, in the annual report, that it would not be long before the company was making money, provided "steel prices improve and market volumes do not fall away."

Spain looks for a lifesaver

By Robert Graham

MADRID: A drowning man will grab a lifebelt, even if it is defective. There is at least some hope. This seems the only explanation for the Spanish government's sudden display of confidence in its ability to fight the four-year-old recession.

With Spain steeped in gloom since the coup attempt in February, any hint of economic good news is grabbed at. The good news is the recent tripartite agreement between the government, the two main trades unions and the employers federation on a form of social contract which limits wages and promises action to deal with unemployment.

Mr. Leopoldo Calvo Sotelo's government has treated this as a sign of national solidarity at a difficult moment, which, while being no panacea, is an important basis for understanding between the principal parties involved in com-

Mr. Calvo Sotelo himself, in a series of virtuoso public performances, has proved a remarkable propagandist. His basic message has been that the government knows what its priorities are, as do the unions and management: combating unemployment, stimulating investment and controlling inflation. The delicate situation created by the attempted coup will not downgrade the importance of dealing with the economy. Finally, he says, there is a chink of light at the end of the tunnel. Mr. Calvo Sotelo's credibility as a no-nonsense talker, a praetical man with long experience of both the private and public sector, has given weight to bis words. Partly as a result of this the stock exchanges have surged upwards, almost five points in one day (May 10), something unseen since the Undoubledly the unions have made the greatest sacrifice, accepting the clear principle of a cut in real income with no fall in the number of working bours. There is also no mention of how or in what sectors the jobs will be created.

However, the employers, the most reluctant to go along with the pact, maintain that wage levels remain unrealistically high. In this context, the Bank of Spain report pointed out earlier this month that Spanish wages to the past two years had risen 7.6 per cent in real terms, against the 0.25 per cent average of industrialised couaverage in the industrial countries. but the overall political climate in Spain during this period cannot be ignored. High wages have been a sop to ensure industrial tranquillity and social stability.

Spanish wages have since 1974

Slowly, the level of wage increases has been reduced since the 25 per cent high of 1978 and in this gradualist context, the social contract agreement represents a further step in the right direction. But the price has been high.

Spanish labour, especially in labour-intensive operations, is pricing Spanish goods out of export markets and weakening industrial competitiveness against the day when tariff barriers are lower. In short, the capacity for adjustment has been, and remains, far too slow -- and not just in wages. The same is true in coming to terms with the higher cost of oil.

The social contract itself by implication underlines the lack of flexibility. Rather than talking of a mid-term adjustment, it is concerned with next year, with all its imponderables. As for any chink of light this is extraordinarily hard Inflation in the first quarter is stionable.

two points up on the same period last year and looks like being around 16 per cent. Industrial production is flat and consumer spending reflects the crisis: new car registrations were down 10 per cent in the first quarter.

Unemployment is up to 1.7 million or over 13.5 per cent of the small indication of levelling off. The government has yet to demonstrate its capacity to curb current spending and stimulate public sector investment without detriment to private sector credit -- a key element to encourage private sector confidence.

A more disturbing trend has been the complete stagnation of exports which since 1977 have played an important part in sustaining the current account. In the first two months of the year volume was down by over 20 per cent and the current account deficit rose from $1.3 billioo to $2.3 billion oo an almost static level of Receipts from tourism have also been static in real lerms. The reserve loss of $796 million is slightly lower, but against this private sector foreign borrowing has quadrupled to $1.02 billion.

Japan government to set guidelines for refineries

TOKYO, July 7 (A.P.) - Government guideline prices, which set a ceiling on Japanese refined oil prices, may be raised, and a 15 per cent cuthack in refinery production will be used to assist troubled refiners. Kyodo news service reported.

The news service said Minister for International Trade and Industry Rokusuke Tanaka told reporters at the National Press Club that Japanese oil refining firms have been losing money this year because of the yen's depreciation against the dollar, a decrease in the demand for oil products and crude oil price increases.

The minister said the government has advised nil refiners to reduce their output beginning this month by 15 per cent. The guideline prices for oil products may be raised as of September, allowing the private firms to raise their prices, the minister said, according to the Kyodo report.

U.S. proposes top level talks with Russia

WASHINGTON, July 7 (R) - The United States wants to hold high-level talks with the Soviet Union by the end of this month on a new long-term grain agreement. Agriculture Secretary John Block said today.

He sold reporters the United States preferred to hold the talks after the Polish Communist Party congress next week, the meetiog being held to set a stamp on Polish liberal reforms which have raised fears in the West of Soviet intervention.

Mr. Block said the purpose of the talks would be to explore a new grain pact that would replace the five-year agreement due to expire at the end of September.

Under the present grain pact, the Soviet Union can import between six to eight millinn tonnes of corn and wheat a year. President Reagan recently lifted an embargo on Soviet purchases of additional grain imposed after the Soviet military move into Afghanistan. But Moscow has not so far responded with any firm additional orders.

LONDON STOCK MARKET

LONDON, July 7 (R) - Interest rate uncertainties continued to duminate market sentiment and prices fell over a broad front, but closing levels were above the day's lows, helped by the banking figures for mid-June, dealers said. At 1500 the F.T. index was down 11.5 at 529.3.

The Bank of England estimated sterling M3 grew about ¼ pct last month, prompting a markup of government bonds by up to half a point. But the gain was pared in subsequent dealings, leaving some issues unchanged. Equity leaders closed a few pence above lowest levels and gold shares were moderately higher. U.S. and Canadians were generally easier, dealers said.

Unilever was 15p down at 576 and Bluc Circle and Shell each ended 12p lower at 484p and 358p respectively. There were falls of 6p to 10p in GEC, Glaxo, Bowater, Tube Investments and Distillers. ICI and BP were both 4p cheaper.

Insurances were generally lower with Royal and Sun Alliance falling 100 each but Commercial Union ended unchanged at 174p, having touched 170p.

Imperial Continental Gas stood out with a gain of 20p at 195p after full year figures.

FIDE refuses Soviet request

AMSTERDAM, July 7 (R) - The International Chess Federation (FIDE) has turned down a Soviet request for an emergency meeting of its executive council to discuss the controversial world chess final, a FIDE spokesman said today.

The Soviet Chess Federation wants to overturn a decision postponing the final between Soviet title-holder Anatoly Karpov and Russian defector Viktor Korchnoi until October 19.

Announcing his decision on June 13, FIDE president Fredrik Olassson said that he could not fulfil his duty to guarantee equal conditions for both players if his bid to help Korelinoi's wife and son leave the Soviet union continued to be thwarted.

The federation had no time to call an extraordinary meeting of the 10-member executive council as FIDE was husy organising its general assembly, scheduled for July 8 in Atlanta, Georgia, secretary general Incke Bakker said.

LIVERPOOL, July 7 (R) - Rampaging youths burned a warehouse and looted a supermarket in a third successive night of violence in Liverpool and police said tuday 75 people were arrested.

But a force of 1,000 police, many drafted into the city from nearby towns, managed to prevent the night-long sporadic elashes from turning into another orgy of full-scale rioting and looting. Trouble was again confined to Texteth, the run-down inner city area with a high black population which was the scene on Saturday

Some politicians and community leaders say poor housing and high unemplorment are at the root of the trouble, although youths interviewed by the press allege police harassment and racialism.

Toxteth has black tamilies descended from seamen who settled in the once prosperous port during the last century. Now, with Liverpool bearing the brunt of recession, une-

India to investigate conversions to Islam

NEW DELHI, July 7 (A.P.1 -The Indian government has announced plans to investigate the recent conversion of hundreds of untouchables, or Hindu outcasts, to Islam, which the converts reportedly described as a move to end generations of discrimination.

Home Affairs Minister Zail Singh told members of a parliamentary committee here the government was aware of the situation and was taking appropriate action. An official statement published today quoted opposition leaders at the meeting as saying that large sums of funds from abroad were used to induce 350 untouchables to convert to Islam in Karayoor village, Tamil Nadu state.

It did not elaborate on the source of the funds or how they were allegedly distributed in the village located about 450 kilometres southwest of Madras.

The converts told Indian reporters who visited them that they switched faith after deciding to break the tradition of exploitation by high caste Hindus in the village,

The 300 Hindu and 50 Christian untouchables maintained that they were not bribed or forced to change religion.

"The conversions were voluntary," a recent convert named Sulaiman told the Indian Express The newspaper listed the grievances of the converts under the old system:

- They had to take off their shoes and sandals whenever they passed an area inhabited by high caste Hindus. -- They were provided separate glasses to drink tea and had to wash the glasses after using them. -- They could not sit in the same place as the upper caste members. - They were not allowed to wear shirts or clothing above the

Discrimination against untouchables is common in predominantly Hindu areas, especially in the countriside. The recent national census placed the population of Hindus at about 520 million and of Muslims at 130 million out of a total of 684 million

The discrimination also apparently extended to the Christian untouchables in Karayoor, who said they also joined Islam partly because there were too many divisions of Christianity in the village.

The new Muslims now pray five times every day in the traditional way, facing toward Mecca. They also have changed their names and mode of dress and wear loose sarongs, caps and beards, news rep-

IRA death fasts; no end in sight yet

BELFAST, July ? (A.P.) -Roman Catholic mediators seeking to end the guertilla hunger strike in Northern Ireland's Maze prison, have presented a package of proposals approved by the protesting prisoners to the British government, the Irish Times rep-

Britain's Northern Ireland office and Sinn Fein, political trint of the outlawed Irish Republican Army (IRA), both declined comment on the report.

But well-informed Catholic sources, who declined to be idenufied told the Associated Press that the main problem now was to find a means to present the package in a way that neither side would be seen to be climbing down and losing face politically.

The report came amid indications that moves to end the nunger strike by eight convicted guerrillas were deadlocked after several days of intense activity by a five-man delegation of the Irish Commission for Justice and

Pressure for a settlement mounted today as the leader of the hunger strike, convicted IRA gunman Joe McDonnel. 30, was reported near death on the 60th day of his fast.

Mr. McDonnell, jailed in 1977 for 14 years for possessing a handgun was given the last rites of the Catholic Church five days ago. Sinn Fein quoted Mr. McDonnell's wife as saying her hus-band's condition has "seriously deteriorated."

Catholic sources in contact with the commission reported the delegation believes their efforts to end the prison crisis are "on a knife-edge,

The sources reported the main sticking point in the commission's protest ends, shuttle diplomacy between the prisoners and the government is the British refusal to make any deal until the guertillas abandon the hunger strike.

The British also refuse to negatiate directle with the prisoners. Another snag apparently is that the hunger strikers themselves are divided over what sort of deal they could accept to end the tast for which four guerrillas died in May.

The Irish Times, Ireland's most respected daily, said the proposals include construction of covered walkways between the Maze's H-shaped cellblocks so that convicted guerrillas can associute among themselves for three hours a day and at weekends.

Peronist political sources said preparations were being made for her to leave Argentina immediately.

Eligible for parole after a court decision earlier in the day. Mrs. Peron appeared in a federal courtroom in Buenos Aires, asked for and was granted conditional release, the official Argentine news agency TELAM reported.

Mrs. Peron. 50, was a dancer who became the second wife nf Argentine strongman Juan Domingo Peron.

She married him during a long period of exile, became his vice president when he returned for his second period in power, ruled for two chaotic years after his death and was overthrown by the army in 1976.

She had been under house arrest since the coup, accused of fraud and misuse of government

Her last prosecution ended today with an 18-month prison sentence that left her eligible for parole because of the time she had already been confined.

The continued detention of tions strongly opposed to her release, and a rallying point for the Peronist Party, whose fractious leaders could hardly agree on anything but the need to free her.

Informed sources said her release was largely the work of President Roberto Viola, a moderate army man who has vowed to seek a gradual thaw in the govemment's relations with Argentina's suspended civilian par-

But she is likely to come under strong pressure to resume some sort of political role. After five years of montetarist policies. Argentina is in deep economic crisis and public feeling is warming again to populist ideas.

Her lawyer, former foreign minister Angel Robledo, told reporters Mrs. Peron would rest for a few days in Buenos Aires before leaving the country.

Soviets strafe rebel positions

NEW DELHI, July 7 (R) — Soviet helicopter gunships made several bombing sorties on suspected rebel positions in villages around the town of Pagman west of Kabul during the past week, diplomatic sources said here today.

Heavy fighting was also reported in Parwan province north of the Afghan capital, the sources said.

They said the town of Gulbahar was reported to have been completely taken over by rebels last

Another town, Charikar, was reported to be in the hands of rebels from early afternoon each day, the sources said.

Acrial activity out of Kabul airport had increased, with Soviet helicopters making sweeps over roads leading south to Ghazni and Kandahar, the sources said.

industrial technology deemed to help Soviet combat potential such as steel mills or processes. The General Accounting Office, an investigatory arm of the Congress, recently criticised these blunderbuss controls, saying in a report that more narrowly focused controls could better protect national security while lessening the burden on American exporters and, for that matter, on federal bureaucrats who last year handled 80,000 licensing applications. The grain ban was lifted because the White House argued it was ineffective as well as unfair to farms and widely undermined by other countries providing Moscow with alternative supplies.

Some foreign companies and countries have undercut parts of the U.S industrial controls, though the sums of money involved are much less than in the East-West grain trade.

One estimate is that the U.S. has lost $280 million in actual or proposed deals halted by controls imposed on non-agricultural exports by Mr. Carter in January, 1980. These comprise $70 million in contracts that could not be completed; $100 million in signed contracts which were then blocked, and $110 million in contracts which Moscow had first discussed with U.S. companies but then channelled to other countries.

The Americans has found it difficult to get agreement or support from theirallies in controlling basic industrial technology sales to the · Soviet Union - the French Creusot-Loire steel plant, the German Kloeckner aluminium plant, for example, and most recently negotiations by a non-U.S. company to supply a new engine assembly line to the Soviet truck plant at Kama River.

American industrial exporters to the Soviet Union are keeping a low profile while the Reagan administration reviews its policy on high technology and heavy industrial sales to the Eastern bloc.

By David Buchan

WASHINGTON: "You would think there would be more pressure than there is," a Commerce Department official said, almost querulously, about the fact that American industry is not lobbying the government hard to ease its curbs on industrial exports to the Soviet Union, in the wake of President Rea-

While U.S. industrial exporters to the Soviet Union like to keep a low profile, they may have cause to complain because they are the only sector still bearing the burden of penalising Moscow for its role in Afghanistan.

Yet, they dn not evoke the public sympathy of the individual farmer, and, collectively, do not carry the same political clout as gan's lifting of the grain embargo.

Thus, manufacturers who in the present climate call for liberalised East-West trade are regarded as vaguely unpatriotic.

Union, but officials caution against any assumption that the grain embargo decision sets a trend for freer trade in other sectors.

The present guessing is that the State and Defence Departments which favour keeping controls will win out against the Commerce Department and its general export promotion bias, and the restrictions will stay. The one exception is fertiliser exports to the Soviet Union by Occidental Petroleum. President Carter lumped these in with agricultural trade and banned the shipment of phosphates which Occidental, under a 20-year, $20-billion deal, had been shipping the Russians in return for ammonia to make chemicals in the U.S. Mr. Reagan has now permitted the phosphates to flow again. This alone accounts for the increase in non-agricultural exports to the Soviet Union which the Commerce Department is projecting this year to rise to $600 million from an estimated $450 million last year. The main purpose of the administration's export control review is to see if the present ad hoc sets of controls cannot be streamlined and simplified without detracting from national security. American businessmen are less bothered by the absolute level of controls than the delays in getting government decisions on their applications according to Commerce Department officials who complain there is no

"clear direction by government to export controllers." The U.S., along with NATO countries and Japan, controls the export of some 125 categories of industrial items to the Soviet Union and the East bloc, through the Co-ordinating Committee (COCOM) in Paris. But the U.S. also has three sets of extra restrictions.

It controls 33 other categories, some of them technological and products unique to the U.S. Before the "detente" decade, the list was longer: 494 categories in 1971 for instance. It also has special controls introduced by the Carter administration
